Allowable Subject Matter

1. Claims 1-2, and 5-10 are allowed.
2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance: The cited prior art taken alone or in combination fails to teach the claimed invention set forth in claims 1-2 and 5-10.

Specifically, the invention set forth in claims 1, 6, 7, 8, and 9 is directed to a method, system, and computer programming for "demanufacturing" a product, specifically an electronic product, whereby information is collected regarding resale prices for individual parts, a resale price for the electronic product as a whole, and commodity prices (each part comprises one or more commodities), a determination is made as to any hazardous material and labor expense to remove such material, and then a computer model is constructed and executed to determine the most financially advantageous way to dispose of the electronic product.

The closest prior art, Suzuki et al. (U.S Patent #5,965,858) teaches a manufactured article recycling system that takes harmful and hazardous materials into consideration. Suzuki et al. does not teach the use of labor or hazardous materials handling expenses, nor the construction of a computer model for determining the various claimed values and for making the decision, based on these determinations, to offer the electronic product for resale, or to remove the parts and offer the parts for resale, etc. The Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences has found that the requisite evidence of the obviousness of claimed features not explicitly disclosed by Suzuki et al. has not been provided.

Graff (U.S Patent #5,802,501) has been found (by the Board of Patent Appeals and Interferences) to be non-analogous art, in that it is directed to real estate or tax-exempt securities transactions, whereas the claimed invention is directed to the disposal of an electronic product. As such, it has been found that it would be improper to combine Graff with Suzuki et al. in order to make a finding of obviousness, as it lacks the requisite establishment of prima facie obviousness

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
